AYASAKI-SAN, KOUNO-SAN, YOU TWO ARE REALLY CLOSE.
HAVE YOU BEEN FRIENDS LONG?
REMI'S KNOWN SAKURA SINCE JUNIOR HIGH.
RIGHT.
BASICALLY, WE KNOW THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY ABOUT EACH OTHER.
OH-HO.
HAVE ISHIKAWA-KUN AND IURA-KUN KNOWN EACH OTHER SINCE MIDDLE SCHOOL TOO?
NO, I'M PRETTY SURE THEY GREW UP TOGETHER.
NYA HAA!
SO THEY'RE CHILDHOOD FRIENDS?

MIYAMURA-KUN, WHAT'S THAT?
WHAT HAPPENED?
YASUDA ASKED ME TO BRING IT.
HE'S RETURNING ALL THE STUFF HE CONFISCATED FROM STUDENTS.
OH, SO MAGAZINES AND THINGS.
APPARENTLY, HE COULDN'T LIFT IT.

Translation Notes

Common Honorifics

-san: The Japanese equivalent of Mr./Mrs./Miss. If a situation calls for politeness, this is the fail-safe honorific.

-kun: Used most often when referring to boys, this indicates affection or familiarity. Occasionally used by older men among their peers, but it may also be used by anyone referring to a person of lower standing.

-chan: An affectionate honorific indicating familiarity used mostly in reference to girls; also used in reference to cute persons or animals regardless of gender.

-(o)nii-chan: A familiar, somewhat childish way to refer to one's older brother.

-(o)nee-chan: A familiar, somewhat childish way to refer to one's older sister.

-senpai: A suffix used to address upperclassmen or more experienced coworkers.

-sensei: A respectful term for teachers, artists, or high-level professionals.

no honorific: Indicates familiarity or closeness; if used without permission or reason, addressing someone in this manner would constitute an insult.

Page 21 - Lend me a blazer and a cardigan!

Since many Japanese schools require students to wear specific uniforms, it is pretty obvious that someone isn't supposed to be in that school if they don't have the proper uniform. That is why Miyamura and Shindou asked to be lent clothes when they went to sneak into Tanihara's school.

A "regent" is a hairstyle stereotypically worn by old-school male delinquents. It's a relatively short style that's heavily greased and combed toward the back of the head, with a prominent puffy bump right over the forehead. Kuwabara from YuYu Hakusho and Toshiyuki Saejima from Great Teacher Onizuka both style their hair this way.

Crushed schoolbag

The type of bag that's normally used in Japanese high schools is made of leather, but the bottom corners are reinforced with small metal clasps that keep them from wearing down. Pounding those corners thin with a rock would turn the bag into a stealth weapon.

Girls who don't show their ankles

In Japan, old-school delinquent girls wear long, extremely modest skirts. Although a conclusive explanation for why this was remains elusive, former delinquents have said it was "to make themselves look more grown-up/set them apart from the girls who were obviously looking for approval," "because running a gang means you're going to be fighting, and you can be really active in long skirts without flashing your underwear," and "because it's hard to look dignified in a miniskirt." All of these sound very plausible.

Showa* era

The Showa era began in 1926 and ended in 1989.

Thank you for everything!

Page 24 – "I'll be in Year 4"
Japanese high schools only have three years.

Page 32 – Short jacket uniforms
A translation of "tanran," which refers to a specific style of Japanese school uniform where the length is less than 65 cm, the sleeves are generally shorter, only one button is present on the cuffs, and the collar is lower than some other types of Japanese school uniforms.

Page 41 – First name and "-kun"
Generally, a girl using a male teacher's first name and attaching the honorific "-kun" would be considered incredibly informal and either inappropriate or insulting, which was part of the reason Sasaki-sensei was overreacting.

Page 42 – Minamoto no Yoritomo (1147–1199)
The founder of the Kamakura shogunate. The most famous Masamune in Japanese history is said to have been Japan's greatest swordsmith; he lived from about 1264 to 1343.

Page 65 – Cleaning duty
Japanese schools rarely employ janitors, so students are generally required to clean the hallways and classrooms as a sign of respect and responsibility.

To account for the change in temperature during different seasons, usually there are both summer and winter variations of the uniforms that are to be worn during specific periods of the year.
